SECTION 1

Economic Update

- The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) voted to keep the fed funds rate unchanged at the June 14-15 meeting. The FOMC statement was mostly balanced, noting that the pace of labor market gains slowed but economic activity picked up. Brexit fears and the corresponding volatility in sovereign bond yields, along with disappointing May jobs report, likely prompted the Fed to keep monetary policy on hold. In her press conference, Fed Chair Yellen conceded that the Fed can more effectively respond to an overshoot of inflation than they can to a weakening labor market and/or deflation. In hindsight, the Fed's cautious stance in June seems to have been prudent. Just a week later, Britain's unexpected vote to leave the European Union was a shock to the financial markets and prompted a broad selloff of risk assets and spike in volatility. The long-term implications of the Brexit vote are highly uncertain. Near term, we expect financial market volatility to remain elevated and interest rates to stay lower for longer. We believe the hurdle rate for future fed funds rate hikes has moved materially higher. Furthermore, we expect the Federal Reserve to remain on hold over the near-term.
- Although the global economy faces headwinds, domestic economic data continues to point toward modest growth, in our view. Nonfarm payroll growth was lower in the second quarter than the first quarter, but remained high enough to absorb new entrants into the labor market. The unemployment rate was 4.9% in June and wage growth continued to tick higher during the month. Consumer confidence remains strong and consumer spending has recently improved. The housing sector appears healthy and pricing remains firm. Meanwhile, manufacturing trends have improved but remain sluggish. Inflation pressures are muted (for now) with the Core PCE index up just 1.6% year-over-year in May. First quarter 2016 GDP grew 1.1%, following growth of 1.4% in the fourth quarter. Market participants are forecasting a modest rebound in GDP growth to 2.5% in the second quarter of 2016.
- In June, the 2-year Treasury yield declined nearly 30 basis points and the 10-year Treasury yield declined almost 38 basis points. Negative interest rates in Europe and Japan, investors' hunt for yield, and a global flight to quality, continues to fuel demand for US Treasury securities. According to fed funds futures prices, the implied probability of one rate hike during the next twelve months is lower than 25%. Elevated market volatility, the potential for a further slowdown in global economic growth, and highly accommodative monetary policies by other global central banks will continue to influence the Federal Reserve. The FOMC's median projection calls for two rate hikes before year-end, but we believe this projection is unlikely to be met.

Nonfarm payrolls were much stronger than expected in June, up 287,000 versus the consensus forecast of 180,000. However, May payrolls (which were already quite low) were revised down to 11,000 from 38,000. During the second quarter, payrolls increased by an average of 147,000 per month, compared to an average of 196,000 during the first quarter. Job growth has decelerated but remains consistent with slow domestic economic growth. The unemployment rate increased to 4.9% in June from 4.7% in May, as the participation rate increased to 62.7% from 62.6%. A broader measure of unemployment called the U-6, which includes those who are marginally attached to the labor force and employed part time for economic reasons, edged down to 9.6% from 9.7%. Wages inched up 0.1% in June, following growth of 0.2% in May. On a year-over-year basis, wages were up 2.6% in June.

Inflation pressures remain contained for now. The Consumer Price Index (CPI) was up just 1.0% year-over-year in May, vs. 1.1% in April. Core CPI (CPI less food and energy) was up 2.2% year-over-year in May, vs. 2.1% in April. The Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) index was up 0.9% year-over-year in May, vs. up 1.1% in April. Core PCE (excluding food and energy) was unchanged in May, up 1.6% year-over-year. Although Core CPI is trending above 2.0%, the Fed's primary inflation gauge is PCE which remains below the Fed's 2.0% target.

Retail sales rose 2.5% in May on a year-over-year basis, following a 3.0% increase in April. Retail sales were up 0.5% month-over-month. Excluding autos and gas, retail sales were up 0.3% month-over-month, in line with expectations. Meanwhile, the consumer confidence index jumped to 98.0 in June from 92.4 in May. Overall, reports on consumer spending have been mixed in recent months but we believe the underlying trend is favorable.

The Index of Leading Economic Indicators (LEI) declined 0.2% in May, dragged down by a since-reversed jump in initial jobless claims. According to the Conference Board (which publishes the LEI), "while the LEI suggests the economy will continue growing at a moderate pace in the near term, volatility in financial markets and a moderating outlook in labor markets could pose downside risks to growth." Meanwhile, the Chicago Fed National Activity Index (CFNAI) declined to -0.36 in May on a 3-month moving average basis, a level consistent with below-trend economic growth. Notably, a reading below -0.70 on a 3-month moving average basis has historically corresponded with the onset of a recession; fortunately the CFNAI remains safely above that level.

Total housing starts slipped 0.3% on a month-over-month basis in May, but were up 9.5% on a year-over-year basis. Month-over-month, single-family starts rose 0.3% in May while multi-family starts declined 1.2%. However, year-over-year, single-family starts were up 10.1% in May and multi-family starts were up 8.4%. Housing starts tend to be volatile on a month-to-month basis and the data is subject to revision. Multi-family starts were particularly strong in 2015, making the year-over-year comparison challenging. We believe underlying trends in the housing market remain healthy. According to the Case-Shiller 20-City home price index, home prices were up 5.4% year-over-year in April, vs. up 5.5% year-over-year in March.

Source: Institute for Supply Management

Source: Federal Reserve

The Institute for Supply Management (ISM) manufacturing index increased to 53.2 in June from 51.3 in May. The index is above the 50.0 breakeven level, which suggests that the manufacturing sector is expanding slightly. Notably, a reading above 43.1 over a period of time is generally indicative of broad economic expansion, based on the historical relationship between the index and GDP growth. Meanwhile, capacity utilization, which is production divided by capacity, dropped to 74.9% in May from 75.3% in April. The capacity utilization rate is much lower than the long-run average of 80.0% (1972-2015), suggesting there is still excess capacity in the industrial sector.

First quarter real GDP growth was revised up again to 1.1%, from the second estimate of 0.8% and the advance estimate of 0.5%. This follows growth of 1.4% in the fourth quarter. The second upward revision to first quarter GDP was driven by an upward adjustment to nonresidential investment and net exports. Growth from Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) decelerated in the first quarter from the fourth quarter but continued to be the biggest overall contributor to economic growth. Market participants are forecasting GDP growth of about 2.5% in the second quarter of 2016.

Over the past three months, the yield curve flattened with the 2-year Treasury yield down 14 basis points and the 10-year Treasury yield down 30 basis points. The flattening is even more pronounced on a year-over-year basis with the 2-year Treasury yield down 6 basis points and the 10-year Treasury yield down nearly 90 basis points. Over the past year, financial market volatility has been elevated due to weak global economic growth, volatile commodity prices, and divergent global central bank monetary policy.
