On November 30, 2015, the City of Stockton signed the teaming agreement to join the Northern and Central California SunShot Alliance (NCCSA) Team. The team is currently participating in a national Solar competition organized and fully funded by the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) to encourage local government and private sector partnerships that streamline permitting and installation of residential rooftop solar systems; and

The SunShot Competition started September 22, 2015, and runs through March 17, 2017. Progress prizes are awarded to regional teams at certain milestones and the end of the competition. The final prizes are a $3,000,000 First Prize and $1,000,000 Second Prize based on the megawatts (MW) of residential solar power installed. All prize money is awarded by the DOE and divided among team members per our teaming agreement and distributed through PG&E as team facilitator; and

The progress prize window has now closed and our team has won a total of $100,000 which is divided among partners. The City of Stockton’s prize allocation is $17,974.51. The overall competition concludes on March 17, 2017 at which time the final prize allocations will be determined; now, therefore
